Distressing Technique

Distressing is the carefully crafted application of characteristics such as dents, wormholes, chisel marks, and other signs of wear to cabinetry to create a finish with a unique and appealing imperfections similar to timeworn antiques, resulting in no two cabinets being exactly the same. Available on most styles and finishes, see designer for details.

Heirloom Technique

Heirloom is a light sand-through technique used to create a naturally worn appearance to cabinetry. The process is artfully applied on cabinetry edges and raised profiles, subtly exposing the underlying wood for a gently aged look. Available on most styles and finishes, see designer for details.
